Fifty years ago today an ambitious young man who had been affiliated with F. M. Palmer in handling stoves and furniture, in the building now occupied by the Dale Furniture Store, entered business for himself, and while he has not moved out of the building, he expanded his business to such an extent that even 30 years ago he was occupying the entire structure and still later spread into another room adjacent.

That young man, of course, was Will E. Dale, and his success was based on honest dealing, giving the people what they wanted in stoves, furniture, rugs and other home furnishings, and holding on to his customers for resale as the years went by.

I think I have told you in this column how Bill, during spare hours and at night soon after starting in business, painted thousands of "pie pans" which had been cut from the tops of Wonder stoves when the old Wonder Stove Co. was turning out great numbers of stoves at the plant now occupied by Weber French and one of the stock yards. Then he painted two words on each pie pan "Dale—Stoves" or "Dale Furniture," and riding a bicycle at night, he nailed those loud-speaking pie pans up on trees, gate posts, and fences throughout Fayette County.

That was one of his ways of advertising, but as the years went by he found that judicious newspaper advertising told the people what he had to sell, and the old method of advertising was dropped.

Just a few days ago I stepped in to see Bill for a few minutes chat, and his eyes were flashing. He said to me:

"A guy just called me over long distance and wanted to sell me a lot of rockers sight-unseen, and while I could use rockers of the right kind, I told him that I was just closing 50 years in business, and that part of my success was due to inspecting and picking every piece of furniture that I offered for sale; that way I know what I am selling my customers."

Bill has long been prominent in local affairs and his advice is still sought by many who have had less years of business experience. All kinds of good wishes to you, Bill.

U. S. WAR CASUALTIES NOW TOTAL 157,865

36,005 of Number Dead, War Undersecretary Reports

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—American casualties in the war now total 157,865, of which 36,005 are dead.

Undersecretary of War Patterson reported today U. S. Army casualties from December 7, 1941, to February 7, 1944, totaled 118,128, divided as follows: Killed, 19,499; wounded, 45,545; missing, 26,339; prisoners of war, 26,745.

Casualties in the sea services—Navy, Marines and Coast Guard—based on reports up to today have amounted to 39,737, as follows: Killed, 16,506; wounded, 9,322; missing, 9,491; prisoners, 4,418.

Patterson said of the 45,545 soldiers wounded, 24,289 have returned to duty.

Of the total prisoners, he said, 1,664 have been officially reported by the enemy to have died in prison camps, mostly in Japanese-occupied areas. He commented, "It is known that the actual number must, in sad reality, be much larger."

TAX BILL VETO REVOLT ENDS IN DEFEAT FOR FDR

Vote of Confidence Roared As Majority Leader Put Back After He Resigned

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—By unanimous Democratic vote, Senator Barkley today was returned to the Senate leadership he resigned in a sensational rebuff to President Roosevelt's tax veto, and the veteran Kentuckian announced he would continue in the important party post.

And, in strident rebellion against President Roosevelt's tax views, the House today voted 299 to 95 to pass the $2,300,000,000 new revenue bill over his veto.

The Senate is expected to duplicate the House action tomorrow, putting the tax bill on the statute books, "the President's objections notwithstanding."

A rebellion in Democratic ranks that reeled political Washington back on its heels preceded the House action. Involved were Senate Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky, and Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the Ways and Means committee, both of whom called for action overriding the President.

The House galleries were filled an hour before the motion to override came to a roll call, and crowds gathered in the halls of the capitol to watch even a small glimpse of the proceedings.

The 80-year-old Doughton declared he had "parted company" with the President on the veto issue, saying Mr. Roosevelt's message reflected "on the judgment and integrity of the Congress of the United States," and that the Executive "has told us in effect that if you'll accept my dictation and abdicate your responsibility, I'll approve what you do."

Mr. Roosevelt's Washington birthday message described the tax bill as a measure for the relief of "the greedy."

WOUNDED AMERICANS NOW HEAD FOR HOME

Fliers To Be Sent Back on Exchange Ship

IRUN, Spain, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The first of three diplomatic exchange trains, with 38 wounded American aviators among those aboard, crossed the Spanish frontier from France today en route to Lisbon, Portugal.

More than 300 diplomats, Red Cross workers, newspapermen and non-combatants of the United States and other American Republics are expected to be aboard the three trains for the exchange with German nationals at Lisbon. They will return home aboard the Swedish liner Gripsholm.

Most of the Americans in the group are believed to have been interned at Baden since November, 1942, when German forces occupied southern France.

New Medal For Bravery For Heroes On Ground

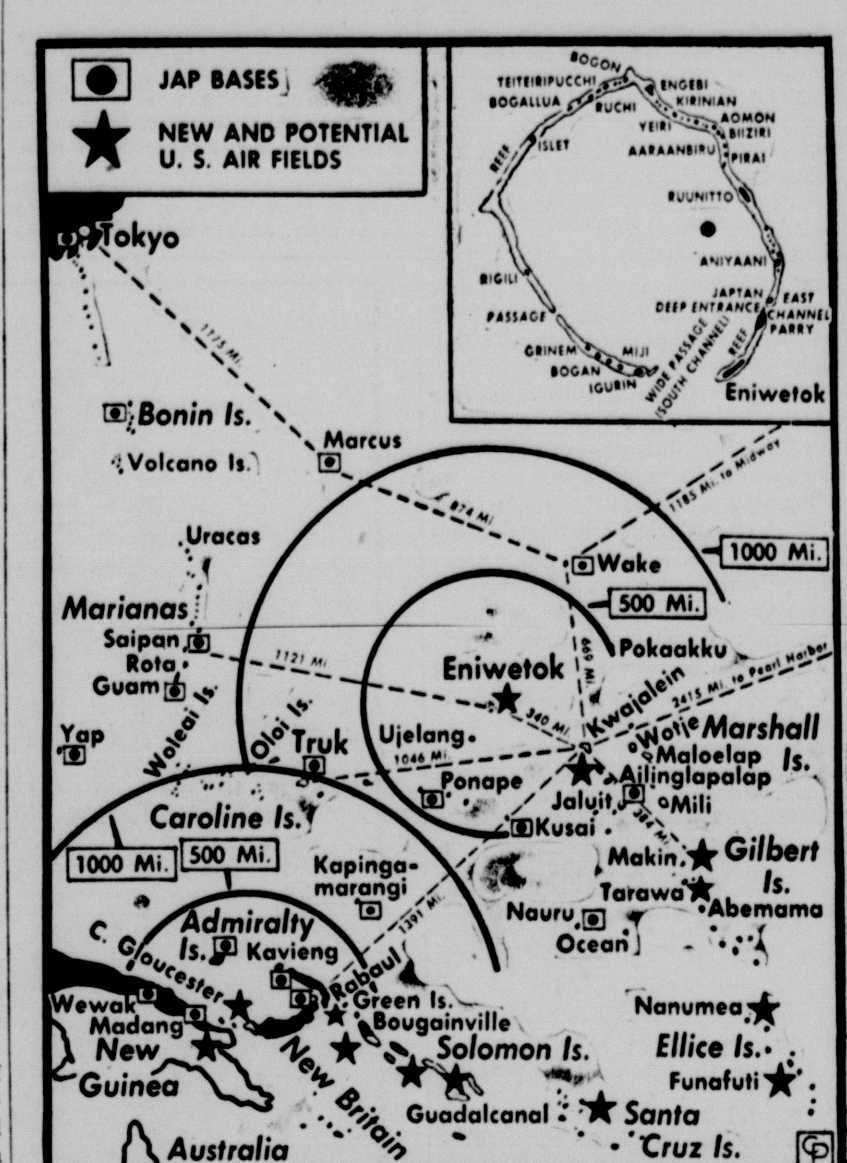

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The bronze star, newest American decoration for action against the enemy, was introduced to the public today, along with the specification that the only place it cannot be won is in an airplane.

Obviously aimed at boosting morale of the mud-sloggers who have been wondering where the aviators got all their medals, the new decoration does the job properly—it takes precedence over the air medal, and also over the purple heart.

It can be awarded, acting Secretary of War Patterson disclosed at a press conference, to anyone in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard who distinguishes himself "by heroic or meritorious achievement or service, not involving participation in aerial flight."

It can be won in combat, or with actions in direct support of combat operations, and—says the army—"it is expected that members of the army ground forces, particularly infantrymen, may lead the eligibility lists." Airmen

Mother and Sister Shot By Bible-Reading Youth; Confession Blames Devil

SAGINAW, Mich., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Sixteen-year-old Edward Warrichait, held in the fatal shootings of his mother and a small sister, was locked up in the Saginaw County jail today as the courts deliberated the disposition of murder charges.

Sheriff Hugo A. Muehlenbeck, who brought the six-foot, Bible-reading youth from Ohio after his capture in that state last night, said Warrichait told freely of shooting both victims at the family farm home near here Monday.

In the confession, the sheriff said, Warrichait related his mind was "kinda blank" and that he saw "red and black flashes" before firing a .32 calibre rifle at his mother, Mrs. Blanche Warrichait, 44, through a crack in the

Mobile Farm Army Is Now Planned For Shifting To Emergency Areas

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The nation's agricultural army will have its own "task force" in the 1944 food production battle, a WFA expert said today.

Col. Philip G. Bruton, war food administration director of labor, said the plan is to establish and maintain a mobile force of about 200,000 able bodied interstate and foreign workers who can be shifted on short notice to save threatened crops in critical labor shortage areas.

The "task force" would constitute only a small, emergency unit of the labor force of 12,000,000 persons who will be required at the peak of the nation's harvest for production of another record war crop, he said.

WFA officials meeting with extension directors and farm labor supervisors from 12 midwest states in the third of four regional conferences said 4,000,000 of the total would be temporary or seasonal workers, including 800,000 women and 1,200,000 children, recruited from cities, towns and villages in the U. S. crop corps community mobilization program.

Col. Bruton, in his prepared talk, emphasized the extra worker goal of 4,000,000 represented 500,000 more than were recruited last year. The regular farm labor force numbers 8,000,000 farm operators, their families and hired hands.

If the 1944 food output goal of 4 to 6 percent higher than last year is to be realized, he said, it will require 72,000,000 more man-days of farm labor than in 1943.

Last year supplementary forces included 65,500 workers from Mexico, Jamaica and the Bahamas; 45,500 prisoners of war, 12,600 Japanese internees, 4,400

Heavy American Naval Carrier Task Force Goes Beyond Blasted Bastion of Truk To Attack Mariana Islands and Bring War Threat Closer To Enemy's Homeland—Allies Continue Ground Drives on Invaded Islands

By MORRIE LANDSBERG. (By The Associated Press)

The sweeping offensive of American forces carrying their assault ever closer to Japan's home waters pointed up today the growing peril of the enemy's positions in the Pacific.

A heavy U. S. carrier attack hit the Mariana Islands, 1300 miles south of Tokyo, for the first time even as American fighting men won still another base in Eniwetok, western Marshalls, to extend operations against the core of Japanese island defenses.

The western end of New Britain "is now completely in our hands," General Douglas MacArthur announced, in a further development contributing to the crumbling of Nipponese strength in the Southwest Pacific.

A movement to "overthrow Premier Tojo is spreading through Japan," the Chinese Central News Agency said today, quoting reports attributed to Japanese in Shanghai.

FARMER DRAFT PLAN ATTACKED

Break With Spain Urged Before Congress

By DONALD HYNDMAN WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—With at least half of the 1,700,000 farm workers facing possible induction under the new Selective Service regulations, Senate farm committee members and four major farm organizations today began a movement for modification of the revised draft rules.

"No one is trying to protect farmers from the draft," said Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.), "but we are concerned about food production."

The movement to relax the regulations has been endorsed by the American Farm Bureau Federation, The National Grange, The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives and The National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation.

Originally, a farm worker, to be entitled to draft deferment was required to produce eight war units—a measure of production computed by Selective Service. Under the new rules he must produce 16 units. Bankhead estimates that with 69 percent of the workers having produced less than 16 units in 1943, and allowing for some deferments on other bases, about half of the 1,700,000 now deferred workers face induction.

Break With Spain Urged Representative Coffee (D., Wash.) today demanded that the United States immediately break all diplomatic relations with Spain.

"We must make this break now on our own terms," he said in a speech prepared for delivery in the House, "before the Axis forces us to break with Fascist Spain on

Irate Congress Backs Barkley

Kentuckian, Who Led Revolt Against President After Tax Bill Veto After Years of Support, Emerges a Democratic Presidential Possibility—Roosevelt Appeals To Old Friend Not To Resign

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Senator Alben W. Barkley emerged today probably the most potent Democratic presidential possibility outside the White House as a fighting-mad Congress rallied behind him in his sensational break with President Roosevelt.

With Allied capitals around the world looking on, a domestic drama of far-reaching implications rose to crescendo pitch as members of the nation's dominant party took sides in the most serious challenge thus far to Mr. Roosevelt's leadership.

Barkley's senatorial colleagues virtually guaranteed him a smashing vote of confidence as they met

Run of Hogs To Markets On Decline

Permission-to-sell Order To Be Rescinded

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Peak of the record-breaking movement of hogs from the country to midwestern stockyards has passed, traders in the livestock market were convinced today, and from now until autumn the trend of shipments probably will be downward.

As proof of this conviction, the Chicago hog marketing committee has decided to end its permission-to-market plan beginning next Monday. The plan, in operation since January 24, was established to prevent farmers from swamping packers with more hogs than could be handled.

Recently, the number of hogs held over unsold at the end of the trading session has been either very small or non-existent. During the marketing peak there were days when hold-overs ran well above 10,000 head.

Prices of some hogs have moved above the government support level of $13.75 a hundred pounds for swine weighing 200 to 330 pounds. This support level also was the highest price paid from November 9, 1943, to February 14, 1944. A few hogs scaling 210 to 250 pounds yesterday brought $14.00.

The advance of prices above the $13.75 level this week was the major factor in the decision to end the permission-to-market plan, livestock observers stated.

BRITAIN TO GO DOUBLE TIME ALL THIS SUMMER

This will put London's clocks six hours ahead of Eastern War Time. The current time difference is five hours.

hand-to-hand fighting with the rear guard of Nazi forces fleeing before the Russians in the northern war sector.

Indications were that the Germans may be massing for another all-out attack on the Allied beachhead.

Fighting in Italy

Fighting again flared on the Anzio front, with artillery gunners breaking up German groups preparing to attack in front of American troops west of Cisterna and Allied troops repulsing Nazi attempts to infiltrate their lines southwest of Carroceto, Allied headquarters announced today.

While four-engined bombers ranged into Austria to attack an important German aircraft assembly plant at Steyr, the tactical air force swung over the coast of Italy and Yugoslavia, showering bombs on enemy shipping destined for Italian battle areas.

The air command announced six Liberators were lost in the Steyr attack. The bomber crews shot down 32 enemy fighters and escorting Lightnings accounted for another.

Air Support Grows

In a visit today to the Mediterranean theater, Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the American strategic bombing force based in Britain and the Mediterranean, talked with the Liberator crews who hit Steyr and explained how the Italy-based air offensive is being coordinated with attacks from England. Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, Allied air commander in the Mediterranean, accompanied Spaatz on his tour.

Patrol actions and sharp exchanges of artillery fire continued on the main Fifth Army front in the Cassino area. Allied shells apparently hit German munitions or gasoline dumps in the mountains northwest of Cassino.

Although sharp fighting occurred at some points on the beachhead and enemy movements suggested Field Marshal Albert Kesselring was regrouping his forces for a third try at driving the Allies into the sea, the German high command did not commit any sizable forces to action yesterday and no ground changed hands.

German planes continued to bomb and shoot up beachhead troops until noon, but rain in the afternoon kept them on the ground.

Reds in Bloody Fight

With bayonet and tommygun, the Red Army was rooting the last Germans from the streets of Dno, in bloody hand-to-hand fighting today as it rapidly rolled up the enemy front in north Russia and pressed powerfully toward the rail hub of Uskov.

OFFICER EXECUTION ORDERED BY HITLER

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Estonian refugees arriving in Sweden have reported rumors that Adolf Hitler visited Pskov in Russia and Narva and Reval in Estonia at the end of January and ordered the execution of some high German officers because of their poor showing against the Red army on the northern front.

At least one officer was shot and another committed suicide, according to these rumors. Another was supposed to have been dismissed.

FARM WORKERS WILL SOON BE RECLASSIFIED

Selective Service Board Here Begins Work; 3-A Class Eliminated

The selective service board here now is sharpening its pencils for another big job—getting full information on deferred farm workers being considered for reclassification.

Only last week, the board finished reclassifying all registrants in 3-A. Amendments to selective service regulations eliminated the 3-A class entirely. Notices of the new classifications were mailed last week, a good ten days ahead of the February 29 deadline set by State Director Col. C. W. Goble.

Registrants in 3-A (H) were also re-classified. The "H" indicates the registrant has reached his 38th birthday. This group is now classified 1-A (H) and classification notices will be mailed within a few days, it was said.

It was explained at present no registrants in this age group are now being called, and until a call for men over 38 is reached, it is not necessary for an employer to file a request for occupational deferment. Ample opportunity for such a request will be given employers if this age group is called, it was added.

The reclassification of farm workers supplements an order made last week for all boards to review 2-C and 3-C classifications of deferred farmers and allow them only for those producing by their own efforts a minimum of 16 war units. A war unit is a measure of agricultural activity, such as the care of one dairy for one year.

Revised forms are furnished for use in supplying information on registrants—including facts on the 1943 production as well as the 1944 program, considering the conditioned quality of livestock on the farm; the 1943 yield of grain compared to neighboring farms and the registrant's work record, both on the farm and non-agricultural employment during the past five years, Goble said.

"A recent sampling of the local boards in 30 counties in the state indicate that the average registrant is producing approximately 23 war units. In some sections of the state the average is approximately 28 units per deferred registrant. It is not uncommon to find that many farmers are producing over 30 war units by their own personal and direct efforts," Goble said.

"This report will also furnish information relative to the members of the registrant's and employer's family having agricultural experience who are not presently engaged in an agricultural activity," Goble added.

He explained that the information was desired as a means of finding possible replacements for presently deferred farm workers.

"A registrant deferred because of his agricultural activity or occupation may be deferred only so long as he is necessary to and regularly engaged in such agricultural activity or agricultural endeavor, and until a satisfactory replacement can be obtained," Goble continued.

The board here also has been requested to examine all 4-F classifications and report all registrants claiming agricultural experience at the time of receiving physical examinations, but who are not currently employed on farms.

"These men should be considered for replacements or registrants now deferred," Goble stated.

The climate of Kwajalein in the Marshall Island is hot and moist, averaging about 80 degrees the year around.

FIGHTING FLARES AGAIN IN ITALY AS AIR WAR GROWS - - REDS SURGE ON to 10 miles were recorded; 150 settlements were seized, 2,500 Germans killed.

Other advances were made in the central Ukraine west and northwest of Krivoi Rog where 6,000 Germans fell in futile defense. Vast piles of booty still were being counted. Berlin said German lines in White Russia northeast of Rogachev had given way before a new Red army onslaught.

Yanks Back Over Germany
Packs of American Marauders and British Typhoons swept across the channel today to resume the Allied aerial offensive amid strong indications American heavy bombers may be making another deep penetration of Germany.

The Berlin radio reported extensive air battles over north-west and central Germany. Several key continental radio stations had left the air.

The Allied daylight assault was resumed after German raiders sharply attacked London last night and RAF Mosquitos had set sirens wailing in Germany again in a series of scattered attacks over the western Reich.

Dutch airfields were the targets selected for the daylight pounding by American Marauders. They struck under cover of Allied fighters while RAF Typhoon fighter-bombers went after military objectives in northern France.

The renewed assault came on the heels of a U. S. strategic air force headquarters announcement which said the concentrated American air attacks on German aircraft factories have so reduced Nazi fighter production that every plane shot down in combat now is a vital contribution toward knocking Germany's air force out of action.

The statement was made in an official bulletin analyzing results of the campaign the Americans began months ago and which hit its peak this week with four successive days of heavy bombing in which planes based in both Britain and Italy participated.

Official statements here and from Allied headquarters, Naples, said 343 German planes had been shot down in the last four days by American airmen in attacks on Germany. Thirty-three of these were shot down yesterday in an attack on Steyr, Austria, by planes based in Italy.

Smoke from fires set by German night raiders still rose over London today as Nazi reconnaissance planes flew boldly over the city and touched off the first bona fide day alert the capital has experienced in many months.

Appearance of the German scouts, apparently checking damage done in the fourth sharp raid on London in six nights, underscored an RAF commentator's warning that the Luftwaffe has shifted strong bomber formations to France and presumably is a year the President had been overridden in the House. The Smith-Connally antistrike bill became law last June over the President's veto, the House voting 241 to 108 to override.

SENATE BACKS BARKLEY AND OVERRIDES VETO IN REVOLUTIONARY SESSION

Mr. Roosevelt during that time has had two vetoes sustained, both prevented outlawing of food subsidies as a part of the wartime stabilization program.

Today's House action was one of the worst legislative setbacks the President has suffered since he took office 11 years ago.

Stamping, in effect, their approval on Barkley's bitter denunciation of Mr. Roosevelt's tax message, Democratic senators roared their acceptance of his resignation and just as enthusiastically re-elected him leader—a leader greatly enhanced in congressional, if not also party, prestige.

The President, to whom Barkley directed his stinging rebuke in an extraordinary speech yesterday climaxed by his resignation, had joined in asking Barkley to continue, in a telegram saying, "your difference with me does not affect my confidence in your leadership nor in any degree lessen my respect and affection for you personally."

After the dramatic party conference, from which Barkley walked sternly after handing in his resignation, the Kentuckian, too, expressed to reporters his "deepest personal affection" for Mr. Roosevelt.

The conference by unanimous votes, immediately accepted the resignation, then re-elected him leader.

Barkley's acceptance followed in his office, when six senators advised formally of the overwhelming vote of confidence. They reported Barkley was so moved his voice broke and tears came into his eyes.

Thus was enacted the second chapter in a political drama which raised a serious Democratic challenge to President Roosevelt's leadership in the 1944 election year.

Denying there were any fourth-term implications in his historic break with President Roosevelt yesterday over the tax bill veto, Barkley asserted:

"I've always had and still have the deepest personal affection for the last generation."

the President. He stands right along personally and officially with Woodrow Wilson who has been my ideal of a president for the last generation."

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

This column has found nothing good to say about General Hideki Tojo, Japan's militaristic premier, but it strikes me that we must give him grudging credit for the great horse-sense he has displayed in taking his people into confidence at once in the matter of Nippon's disaster at Truk.

Indeed it must be admitted reluctantly that, just as the Allied Nations probably could learn some useful tricks from the devil himself, so in this instance they could get a pointer from Tojo. The general didn't wait for weeks or months before disclosing the seriousness of the defeat to his public.

Naturally Tojo didn't tell the exact truth; he isn't capable of it. However, he wasn't so far off the beam, and he served the people hot mustard.

He told them Japan had suffered "losses greater than the enemy's," in fact he bluntly stated that she had lost 18 ships (we claimed 19 as a certainty). He said that "the war situation is truly grave," that events "by no means permit optimism," and that "the empire is literally standing at the crossroads of a rise or fall."

Of course, Japan's head gangster is wholly selfish in thus exposing the facts. He doesn't give a "tinker's damn" about the general public, which he had placed upon the sacrificial altar of militaristic ambition. But he needs the support of all Japan, for he knows that armies and navies are helpless unless the public is back of them. Winning wars is a complete partnership.

Japanese Vice Admiral Ogasawara, president of the Japan society, in speaking of Tojo's gesture, made the quip that "most probably if it had been America they would have kept it secret for a year." Well, "military necessity" or what has impelled the authorities on many occasions to keep back important information for long periods in some cases, and presumably that's what he was tilting at.

There are times when it's necessary for the authorities to suppress news temporarily as a matter of security. However, there have been numerous instances when officials have delayed issuing news for long periods and later found it impossible to justify the action. A lot of my readers tell me they feel too much attention is paid to the "psychological reaction" back home.

In short, there's a disposition in some official quarters—and this is true on both sides of the Atlantic—to view their public as lacking understanding. The man in the street hasn't the stability to withstand adverse news, and he is likely to get over-optimistic if he receives good reports.

Personally in traveling about our country I've found the general public mighty understanding and quite capable of thinking for itself. Anyway, the rank and file feel that this war is their show and they want full participation

K OF P OBSERVES 52ND YEAR IN JEFFERSONVILLE

Mack Sauer Is Speaker at Lodge's Anniversary Celebration

Jeffersonville Knights of Pythias celebrated their 52nd anniversary with a meeting attended by over 100, including guests from Washington C. H., Jamestown, South Solon and Leesburg.

Mack Sauer of Leesburg was the speaker at the meeting, presided over by C. G. Stuckey, vice-commander of the lodge. A covered dish supper followed the program, held in the K. of P. Hall.

Three new members, Mrs. Mary J. Kemp, Mrs. Josephine Lower and Mrs. Edna Swaney were initiated into the Past Chief Club at its meeting in the K. of P. Hall. The initiation was conducted by Pauline Cannon, Mary Marshall and Juanita Barlett. Bonnie Hausel of Springfield was a guest at the session. A potluck supper was served after the meeting. The March date is set with Mrs. Bernice Rumer.

in it. News is the prime essential.

There's a widespread feeling that the Allied public have served their apprenticeship as junior partners and are due for full partnership. This question is of special importance now as we draw near to the crucial operation of the European war—the invasion of France—when an all-out effort on the home front is vital.

President Roosevelt, Premier Churchill, Marshal Stalin and other great figures have been emphasizing the magnitude and its dangers. In a general way the American public understands the position, but many people are telling me that they lack the "feel" of the thing, and most of them say they think they've been "shielded" too much from distressing news. They ask for that full partnership.

Potluck Supper Honors Mr. and Mrs. Everett Waddell, Who Go To Sabina

A short program at the Conner P.-T. A. Wednesday night, featured Entertainer Manker, who gave imitations of birds and animals, played the piano with heavy mittens on his hands and wound up his performance with an appeal for blood donors when the Red Cross Mobile Unit comes here again.

Rationing Program Changes
Another change in the rationing program becomes effective February 27. On that date tokens will be put into use as change, instead of smaller denominations of ration stamps. Any change in policy means that there will be some confusion. But, it appears that the program has merit. Retailers should be benefitted by the change in the amount of bookkeeping necessary under the present system of operation. Banks should be aided, too, and the public should be able to handle the change without too great difficulty. So, the housewife must prepare herself. Naturally, the job of handling the family's ration tokens will be largely her's.

But as important as the introduction of tokens, are the other features of the revised plans. Two major food programs are affected—the rationing of processed foods—and the rationing of meats, fats, butter, cheese, canned milk and edible oils. You're going to use your blue and red stamps in Ration Book Four to buy these rationed foods—but there'll be this big difference. The blue and red stamps will be worth ten points each, regardless of the number printed on them. You'll get blue or red tokens, depending on which stamp you spend, from your grocer or butcher as change. And the tokens will be worth one point each—Stamps ten points, tokens one point each. It's as simple as pennies and dimes.

But there is a further difference—another feature of the new plan will make shopping and budgeting your points much easier for you. Ration stamps will be good for a longer period—almost three times as long. There won't be all that fuss and flurry to spend your stamps before they expire. Most people may like this new system. Maybe it's a step forward to take some of the headaches out of rationing!

The Road to Destruction
One of the most pernicious beliefs that has come out of this war is the idea that since we have been able to achieve full employment and high wages producing armaments, there is no excuse for not achieving the same goals in peacetime by producing a flood of automobiles, refrigerators and luxury gadgets ad infinitum.
When asked the question, Why does it always seem easy to find money to prosecute a war, and so hard to find it to win the peace?, Dr. Harley L. Lutz, Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University, replied: "The peace economy must remain solvent. A war economy doesn't have to remain solvent, and usually is not solvent. When we get into a war, we give the government complete dictatorial powers over everybody. It can conscript labor; it can force men to work; it can set wages; it can confiscate income and property; it can suspend all rights. The so-called war prosperity rests on this foundation of actual, although perhaps not nominal slavery."

We have consented to these things because the war must be won at any price. But tax spending for the mere sake of spending, as was done during pump-priming days, must end. Normal expenses of government must be cut to the bone and people must be taught to save. Either that, or we are on the road to destruction.

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — At the Office of Price Administration, they're wrestling with one of the toughest problems in months—how to stop skyrocketing prices of used cars.
Already there have been reports from some areas that the high prices of used cars are slowing up the war effort. Workers who must travel long distances to their jobs and can't afford this high-priced transportation are finding work nearer home, regardless of whether it is essential.
According to information received here, three-year old used cars in some sections are selling 75 to 80 per cent over the cost of the car when it was new. In some instances, this has brought the cost of some of the least expensive cars to around $1,500.
What is the answer? Price ceilings and maybe rationing. Why hasn't OPA done something before? The resistance of industry. Dealers say ceiling prices would force many of them out of business, necessitating the closing of many repair shops, carried as a sideline. These repair shops are badly needed to keep the nation rolling. It is estimated that at least 20,000,000 cars must be kept moving if wartime transportation is to be maintained adequately.
A second factor is the fear of creating a new black market that could be worked between individuals. It would be almost impossible to prove that a "premium" was paid over the ceiling price.
The third problem is one of pricing. Although a base value can be established for used cars, it is impossible to establish the value of a used car by the make, the year it was turned out, and the number of miles on the speedometer.
The talk now is that there might have to be two types of ceilings—one on guaranteed reconditioned cars sold by dealers and another on cars sold by individuals.
Also there is no assurance that ceiling can be established that will keep used cars rolling into the "market"—an essential factor if war work is to be maintained. Serious shortages of used cars in the big war industrial centers would affect the whole war program.

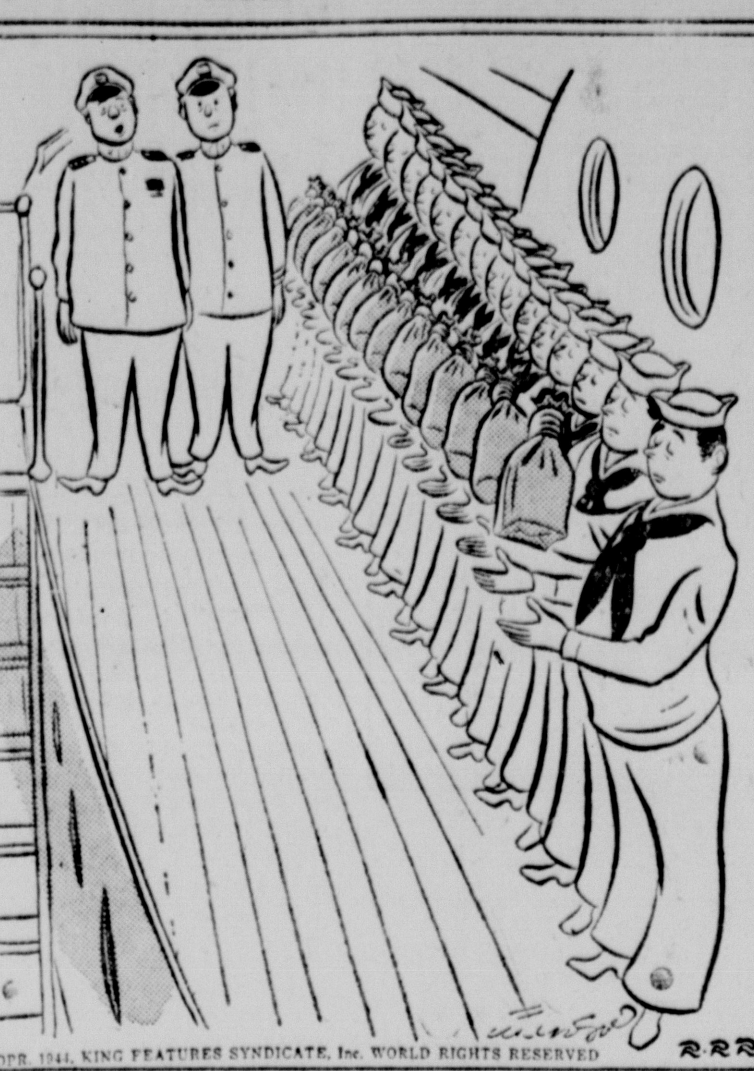

Flashes of Life
Slicker Visits Mule Country
GREENVILLE, S. C.—The story came out in Juvenile Court:
An eight-year-old boy was sent to the store to get some oranges. On the way home he met a man, slightly in his cups, who said he'd swap a mule, grazing nearby, for the oranges.
So the man set the boy on the mule to its rightful owner but they couldn't find the man with the oranges.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Take two quarts of tar and two gallons of kerosene and bring to boil. Dip hooks in mixture, then submerge in nearest stream and wait.
But it does work, they say, and it's known as doodle-oil fishing. One story has it that a Negro preacher from Alabama introduced this technique, explaining: "They smell's the bait."

The Stamp of Genius
NEWTON, N. J.—The farmer had come 30 miles to do his shopping, and brought a No. 18 shoe coupon taken from his ration book. The shoe clerk said he could not accept a loose stamp. The farmer argued he could send a loose coupon to a mail order house. "You can do the same here," replied the clerk. Whereupon the farmer sat down wrote a letter to the store, stamped it, handed it to the clerk. The salesman wrapped the shoes and mailed the package to the farmer. Honor was saved for 18 cents in postage.

Congress Must Be "Bloc" Buster
The Congress of the United States is made up, for the most part, of hard working, sincere men who have the best interests of the nation at heart. During the past decade, congress has been subjected to reprehensible pressure group attacks.
Organizations representing "bloes" of citizens, and professing to speak for such voting groups, put pressure on congressmen to force through class legislation.
Such practices, unless curbed, will be the ruin of any country. Organization leadership should raise its sights. Congress should not be subjected to high pressure coercion. Special pleaders for pressure groups have sought to make this a country of special privileges for minorities at the expense of majorities.
If we want to perpetuate our republic on the basis of liberty and opportunity for all, it is high time that when we go before our lawmakers with our problems we show more than a mere desire to feather our own nest. For after all, the best nest feathering each one of us can do is to help perpetuate constitutional government in the United States—not government by bloc coercion and vote control.

Nutritional Ills Attacking Infants
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IN ARTICLES during the last two weeks we have outlined the most modern practice in infant feeding during the first year and the second year. Milk modification
Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
is now on a satisfactory and scientific level. The most important features of milk for infant feeding are that it shall be clean, sufficient and with proper nourishing factors.
Vitamins C and D need to be added to a diet of cow's milk and usually iron. Modern practice, we noted, gave infants additional food earlier than used to be thought necessary and a variety of solid or semi-solid food during the first year.
But even the best modern management occasionally runs up against the same old infant troubles that our grandmothers had, disturbances of nutrition and digestion.
Infant's Nutritional Troubles
The commonest nutritional trouble of the infant is failure to gain weight. And the commonest cause of failure of the infant to gain weight is inadequate food intake. Other causes are infections, chronic or acute congenital disturbances of the digestive tract, such as celiac diseases, possibly allergy. The old ideas that some particular part of the food is responsible for malnutrition have been proved worthless—for instance, starch malnutrition.
Common errors resulting in underfeeding are:
(1). Boiling the orange juice. This kills the Vitamin C which is the very reason orange juice is given.
(2). Changing formulas. Mothers get worried when the baby does not gain, and get panicky in changing to queer formulas. Cases come up of infants who have been exclusively on a diet of cereal water for weeks, in the belief that milk was undigested or indigestible. The chances are the formula is all right, but the infant simply does not get enough of it, which means larger or more frequent feedings. Or that not enough sugar is added to cow's milk. Weighing the baby before and after every feeding of breast milk will decide the amount of milk obtained.
(3). Misinterpretation of symptoms. When malnutrition is present and especially as it increases, diarrhea is likely to occur. This is interpreted as an indication for further reduction of food. Or as idiosyncrasy to some food element, so the formula is exchanged, decreasing one or the other food element which simply makes matters worse.
Any infection, especially if accompanied by fever, results in decrease of appetite and hence in weight loss. Chronic infection of the nose and upper respiratory tract often leads to diarrhea which is interpreted as digestive trouble and feedings are reduced. Infections of the urinary tract are particularly likely to be overlooked in infants on account of the difficulty of collecting urine.
Among digestive diseases, diarrhea used to hold first place. In fact it used to account for more infant deaths than all other causes combined. Clean milk—dairy inspection, pasteurization, etc., has nearly eliminated it, but it still exists. Infants are much more susceptible to diarrhea than adults. And infections will get in the milk, no matter how rigid the precautions. The principles of treatment of infectious diarrhea are temporary rest of the digestive system, restoration of fluid balance, and of mineral balance; blood transfusion, if severe.
Vomiting is the second of the digestive diseases of infancy. The common causes are over-distention of the stomach by swallowing air, too frequent feeding, too large volume of food, unsuitable food, improper clothing.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE
SYNOPSIS
Syria Verne, de luxe model, was the victim of a fatal bullet fired as she answered the telephone in her penthouse apartment to which she returned soon after midnight following a quarrel with Pierre Sturgis, art photographer. Argus Steele, author and erstwhile detective, is reconstructing the events of the evening before. He and his friend, Ellen Curtis, a model, were in the swank Penguin Club. During a brief absence of Ellen, Syria entered and was greeted by Argus as an old friend, the one-time Lucy Callahan who sang in the fearsome Dancer Martinelli's cafe. She announced that she had signed a Hollywood contract recently. Soon they were joined by Ellen and Pierre Sturgis. As Syria and Pierre were about to leave, the former asked Argus to phone her, adding in a whisper: "I may need your help." Eller told Argus that she had overheard "a sallow looking little man" threaten Syria outside the Pierre Sturgis studio. From the bar came Bill Carstairs, III, playboy, who introduced his current blonde, Dorry. Later in the ladies' room, Ellen found Dorry in tears because Bill is phoning that awful Syria Verne again. When Dorry dropped her opened purse, Ellen was shocked to see a snub-nosed revolver in it. Leaving Dorry in the care of an attendant, Ellen rejoined Argus, related what she saw, and they left the Penguin. Next morning, Ellen phoned Argus the news of Syria's murder and asked him to meet her at Roger Flag's model agency. Police Inspector Grange calls and is now discussing the crime with Argus.
CHAPTER SIX
Grange squinted at Argus speculatively.
"Well," he began, "at nine this morning we got a call from the superintendent of the building where Lucy—Syria, lived and he tells us there's been a murder. So we go up to investigate."
"How did the superintendent know? Did he hear a shot?"
"No. It seems that no one heard the shot. But Syria worked for a model-agent named Roger Flag and this morning she didn't turn up for an early appointment. He had his secretary call her. The line was busy and finally the operator reported that the line must be out of order. You see, Steele, the phone was off the hook, lying near the body. Well, they finally called the superintendent and told him to get upstairs and tell Miss Verne to get in touch with the office immediately. The man knocked and there wasn't any answer, so he opened the door with a passkey and found the body, then he called the police." Grange paused.
"Did you find the gun?"
"No. No fingerprints neither."
"What time was she murdered?"
"As near as the doc can figure it must'a been around midnight. Finding the telephone off the hook that way makes it look like she might have been tryin' to get help when she was shot," Grange said. "She still had her hat and coat on like she just came in."
"Did it look as if the place had been broken into?"
"That's a funny thing too. The windows were all locked from the inside and, according to the superintendent, so was the front door. She had some money in her bag and a big diamond ring on her finger." He settled back in his chair. "So it wasn't robbery."
"Did she have a maid?"
"Yes. She was in the chips all right. The maid came in while we were there. She said she worked for her part time. We couldn't get much out of her except that Syria had quite a few men friends but not many women." Grange smiled.
"I can believe that," said Argus. "Did she mention any one in particular?"
"She said something about this Pierre Sturgis you mentioned. I have a detective checking up on him now. The elevator boy said Syria came home last night and she acted like she was plenty sore about something."
Butch came in and announced that Inspector Grange was wanted on the telephone. Argus finished his breakfast and Butch took away the tray. Grange returned.
"That was Smith, the guy I sent over to get Sturgis' story," he said. "It don't sound so good. Seems Syria had dinner with him and some friends named Carter. Syria walked out on the party about eleven-thirty and Sturgis and the Carters left a few minutes later. Sturgis left the Carters in front of the Maison Restaurant and went for a walk."
"A walk?"
"That's what he told Smith." Grange nodded as if to confirm his own statement. "Know anything about him?"
"I met him last evening for the first time," Argus said.
"It seems he was in love with Syria, but last night was the first time she'd been out with him in a month. He told Smith they'd had some sort of misunderstanding. Looks like my next stop'll have to be Sturgis' studio." Grange frowned. "Did Syria say anything to you last night, when you ran into her?"
Argus recalled Syria's tenseness and her whispering, "I may need your help," and debated whether or not to tell the Inspector. He finally decided it would do no harm.
"Any idea what she meant?" Grange asked.
"No," said Argus lighting a cigarette, "not the slightest."
"Syria's come up in the world since we knew her," Grange remarked. "She lived in an expensive apartment in a working girl—penthouse in fact. Been there almost a year now. The lease is in her own name. She has a Van Gogh original hanging on the wall. As I told you we found a man's robe hanging among her clothes. Came from Frippey's. We're checking that too. You wouldn't know whether some one was puttin' up for her, would you?"
"No," said Argus.
"Did she mention Dancer Martinelli's name last evening?"
Argus repeated what had been said and mentioned Ellen Curtis' story about the sallow-complexioned man to whom Syria had been seen talking. Grange looked serious.
"I don't know," said Argus. "Aside from that picture of me you found, weren't there any phone numbers or addresses lying around the apartment—or letters?"
"We found a couple of addresses in her bag. One was Flag's office and the other was Sturgis' studio. The maid said she had a list by the phone, but whoever bumped her off must've stolen it. We couldn't find it. As for her mail, there were a few bills and—" Grange chuckled, "a letter from a Rajah in India who'd seen her picture in a bathing suit and proposed to her by mail. Said she could be head wife of his harem. The maid said that Syria didn't get many letters and when she did she destroyed them."
"Bright girl! Did the maid remember any of the names or numbers on the phone list?"
"She said she'd seen Sturgis' name and Flag's and some one beginning with 'Car'—she couldn't remember the rest of it. She was pretty frightened by the murder."
"May have been the Carters who was out with last night," said Argus. "Or Bill Carstairs."
"The playboy?"
"Yes. He phoned her last night. He was at the Penguin Club too. He was with a blonde—a blonde who was carrying a gun."
Grange sat forward. "A gun, eh? What's her name?"
"Dorry."
"Dorry? Dorry what?"
"I don't know. Why don't you ask Carstairs?"
"I will," Grange made a notation. "By the way, what time did you get home last night?"
"Around twelve, I guess. I didn't notice. Miss Curtis and I had dinner and I took her home around 11:30." He grinned at Grange. "Am I on your list of suspects too?"
"Just a routine check-up. After all, you did know Syria Verne pretty well and some one—not me under stand—might get inquisitive." Grange smiled knowingly. "Whoever killed her was clever. Careful not to leave any evidence around. No one was seen going in or out of her place at the time of the murder. I just had an idea—"
"That detective might turn criminal and attempt to commit the perfect crime? Is that, it Herr Himmler?"
"Well, it's just an idea," Grange agreed with a grin that took the sting out of his words. "Did Syria have any relatives?"
"Plenty of illicit ones, I suppose."
"No. You know what I mean—relatives."
"When I knew Syria," said Argus, "she told me she was an orphan and that an old couple in Kansas had adopted her and brought her up, but they died before she came to New York."
"Well, if she had any relatives I guess they'd read about it in the papers," Grange put away his notebook. "Guess I'd better be shovin'." He slapped his knee as he rose.
"I'd like to see those paintings of yours some day, Inspector. I never did figure out why a guy who was as good an artist as you are ever became a cop."
Grange looked down at his feet. "What's the matter with bein' a cop? You get to see a lot of life. Besides, my old man was a sergeant—Lord rest his soul!"
"So that's it," Argus said.
"Yeah, and I'm glad I am. What I've learned ain't hurt my painting any. You know, Steele, we've both seen a lot of murder, but this time I'm sore. I was kind'a fond of Lucy but I had a hunch she'd hit a snag some day. She was too attractive for her own good." He shook his gray head sadly. "By the way, who painted that nude?"
"He went over to examine it again. It's a little too sexy for a really great art—but it's effective."
"A man I helped send up the river. He did it just before he got the chair. He told these warden he wanted me to have it." Argus paused. "Strange, isn't it? Apparently both murderers and police inspectors have artistic impulses at times."
"I knew a bank robber once who liked to knit."
"Probably did it to keep his fingers nimble for cracking safes," Argus said. "Say, who was that beautiful dame you were with last night around 11:30?"
Grange was completely taken aback. The color rose in his high cheekbones.

Understand Your Federal Income Tax
INCOME OF FARMERS
The income tax returns of farmers, including livestock raisers, fruit and truck growers, poultry raisers and operators of plantations and ranches, will be due on or before March 15, 1944.
Farmers may keep their records and file their returns of income either on the cash receipts and disbursements basis or on the accrual basis of accounting. A consistent method must, however, be employed. If a cash basis is used, Form 1040F, "Schedule of Farm Income and Expenses," is required to be filled in and filed along with Form 1040. Use of Form 1040F is optional in the case of farmers who report income on the accrual basis.
A farmer who reports income on the cash receipts and disbursements basis (in which no inventories to determine profits are used) must include in gross income for the taxable year (1) the amount of cash or the value of merchandise or other property received during the taxable year from the sale of livestock or produce which was raised, regardless of when raised; (2) the profits from the sale of any livestock or other items which were purchased and (3) gross income from all other sources.
Under the accrual basis in which inventories are used to determine the profits, farmers' gross profits are ascertained by (a) adding to the inventory value of livestock and produce on hand at the end of the year the amount received from the sale of livestock and produce, and miscellaneous receipts of income during the year, and (b) deducting from this sum the inventory value of livestock and produce on hand at the beginning of the year and the cost of livestock and produce purchased during the year. All livestock, whether purchased or raised, must be included in inventory. Livestock acquired for draft, breeding, or dairy purposes and not for sale, may be included in the inventory instead of being treated as capital assets subject to depreciation, provided such practice is consistently followed.
If farm produce is exchanged for merchandise, groceries, or the like, the market value of the articles received in exchange is to be included in gross income. The value of farm products which are produced by a farmer and consumed by his family does not constitute taxable income. Rents received in crop shares are to be reported as income as of the year in which the crop shares are reduced to money or the equivalent of money. Proceeds of insurance, such as hail and fire insurance on growing crops, are required to be included in gross income. Amounts received as loans from the Commodity Credit Corporation may at the option of the taxpayer, be considered as income and included in gross income for the taxable year in which received. The election once made is binding for all subsequent years unless the Commissioner approves a change to a different method of accounting. Amounts received under the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended, the Price Adjustment Act of 1938, section 303 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended and the Sugar Act of 1937 constitute taxable income to the recipients for Federal income tax purposes.

From where I sit...

Bob Newcomb was reading me a letter the other day—from his son in the Marines. Dick Newcomb's somewhere in the South Pacific, thousands of miles from home, yet he writes to ask:
"Tell me, Dad, do they still pitch horseshoes back of Ray's? Is Johnny keeping my toys in shape? Are the trout still biting in Seward's Creek?"
"Makes you realize what the men over there are thinking about. Sure, they're fighting for Democracy and Freedom and a Better World Tomorrow."
But the things they dream of coming back to are the little simple pleasures that mean home to all of us—like a home-cooked meal, a glass of beer with friends, a game of horseshoes in the backyard.
From where I sit, one of our most sacred obligations here at home is to keep those little things exactly as they remember them—to keep intact the world they're fighting for.

One Guest Is Included at Dessert-bridge

When Mrs. Charles Reinke entertained the members of her two-table bridge club, Wednesday evening, one guest, Mrs. John Forsythe, was included in the evening's pleasures.

The hostess invited her guests to the dining room upon arrival where she served a tempting dessert course. The table was decorated along a patriotic color scheme, with red and blue tapers flanking a bowl of white flowers in the center of the attractively appointed table.

Following the congenial hour spent by the guests at the serving table, the remainder of the evening was gaily spent at the bridge table. Score awards went to Miss Ruth Sexton and Mrs. Russell Giebelhouse, while Mrs. Forsythe was awarded the guest prize.

Three Tables of Guests Included At Dinner-Bridge

Mrs. Frank Littler graciously entertained the members of her dinner-bridge club at her home on South Main Street, Tuesday evening, and three tables of guests were included in the many pleasures of the evening.

Placecards were of cleverly-conceived hatchets when the guests found their places at the attractively appointed and decorated table. Favors of miniature cherry trees, carrying out the George Washington theme, and red, white and blue burning tapers were used on the table. The hostess served a perfectly prepared two-course dinner and a delightful hour was spent by the members and guests at the table.

The remainder of the evening was spent playing bridge with awards going to Mrs. Hughie Thompson, Mrs. Howard Fogle and Miss Minnie Brakefield, at the close of the evening.

Family Night Is Held At First Presbyterian Church Wednesday Eve

Annual Affair To Welcome New Church Members Sponsored by Women's Guild at Church Here

The Woman's Guild of the First Presbyterian Church sponsored a potluck supper in the church dining room, Wednesday evening, as a welcoming gesture to those people who became new members of the church during the past fiscal year. This is an annual affair of the guild and is called "family night."

Covers were laid for approximately eighty-eight members of the church and their families, and a most bounteous and varied menu was enjoyed by the large assemblage of guests. Seating arrangements were made at several large tables, which were lighted by white tapers. The tapers were the only decorations.

The president of the Guild, Mrs. Herbert Clickner, assisted by the luncheon committee and entertainment committee for the year were in charge of all arrangements and plans. Chairman of the luncheon committee is Mrs. C. R. Philhower, assisted by the following: Mrs. Frank Cox, Mrs. G. C. Kidner, Mrs. Stanley Schneider, Mrs. G. E. Bidwell, Mrs. Maryon Mark, Mrs. C. S. Kelley, Mrs. F. D. Woollard and Mrs. C. V. Sexton. The entertainment committee is composed of chairman, Mrs. J. Rankin Paul, and Mrs. Frank Jackson, Mrs. A. B. Murray, Mrs. O. D. Farquhar and Mrs. A. J. Burgett.

Following the highly enjoyed supper hour, Rev. John K. Abernethy spoke a few words of welcome to the new members and this was followed by several moments of silent prayer for the family of the late Robert Frost, a beloved member of the church and choir. Rev. Abernethy closed the tribute with a most beautiful prayer.

Mrs. J. Rankin Paul then led the group in singing patriotic songs, with Mrs. Ralph Gage at the piano. Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Farquhar then presented before the interested guests a lengthy interlude of pictures, shown by a movie projector and screen. These pictures were of the ministers of the Presbyterian Church since 1910 and included Rev. Jones, Rev. Gage, Rev. Nicholson, Rev. Mitchell and Dr. Oldham.

Pictures were shown also of former church elders, Sunday school group pictures and prominent members of the church many years ago. These were interestingly narrated by Mrs. J. Rankin Paul.

SGT H. E. THOMAS FINDS SCOTCH ARE GENEROUS

Letter To Mother Here Tells Of Furlough Spent in Taking in Sights

Sgt. Harold E. Thomas is one Fayette County man who won't see the point of Scotchman jokes after the war—for when he spent a furlough in Edinburgh early in February, he found the Scotch people generous.

At least that's the impression given in a letter to his mother, Mrs. Ethel Thomas of the Bogus Road. Besides seeing such landmarks as Edinburgh castle and the birthplaces and homes of Robert Burns, Robert Louis Stevenson and Alexander Graham Bell, he and his friends were "royally entertained by people 'who couldn't seem to do enough for us.'"

Sgt. Thomas has been in the Air Corps since July, 1942. His father died while he was still stationed at Patterson Field. He has been overseas since July, 1943, stationed in the British Isles. A graduate of Good Hope High School and Cedarville College, he taught school at Leesburg before entering the army.

This is part of his chatty letter: "We spent all of our time in Edinburgh. We wanted to go to Loch Lomond from there but it would have meant another train ride so we didn't go. All the Scotch people we talked to said it wasn't nearly as nice at this time of the year anyway. The Red Cross was full so we had to find a hotel to stay in. We had a large room with a double and a single bed. It was more of a boarding house than a hotel, located in the residential district.

"We were the only 'Yanks' and practically the only young people there. Most of the residents were old men and women. We did have a nice 18 year old girl to clean up our room and bring our breakfast to us in the morning. We were always too sleepy to dress and eat with the rest of them, so she would set a table in our room and wake us up for breakfast.

"The lady who ran the place was really swell to us. She had made a collection of pins or brooches with bull dogs on them and when we left she gave each of us one of her pins. She said she wanted to give us a souvenir to remember her by.

"The most interesting thing we saw was, of course, the Edinburgh castle. On three sides, it's solid rock straight down to the street since it's built on a large hill. On the fourth side there's a street that runs right into the castle. Outside there's a large courtyard and a narrow passageway leading into the castle itself.

"It looks about like you'd picture a castle—it has a lot of old rooms with the old furniture still in place, a museum full of old guns, armor and swords and lances carried by the knights of olden times. In the shrine are a lot of memorials to soldiers of different nations in the last war.

"There's a large natural park right at the edge of the city that they take great pride in. There are three or four large hills (they call them mountains) in it that are really beautiful. There is one in particular where the girls go to wash their faces on May 1. It is supposed to make them beautiful the rest of their lives.

"I bought some scarves and handkerchiefs in a place where Robert Burns used to write his poems. We saw where several famous men—like Alexander G. Bell, Robert Louis Stevenson and Robert Burns—had been born or lived at one time.

"We met some nice people at the theater one night who really showed us a good time. They insisted on having us out to their house after the theater for a party. There were about five couples together and we spent the next three nights with them. They couldn't seem to do enough for us. One of them owned a cinema in Edinburgh so we went there to see a stage show on Sunday evening. The man took us all over the theater and we practically had the run of the place. They insisted we come back on our next furlough, but I hope we won't get another one over here.

"The family where we visited had just had a baby and they gave us a piece of the christening cake to keep for good luck. The father was kinda put out since the minister at the christening was telling them how a child should be brought up and that a lot of the mothers went to movies in the evenings instead of caring for the children. Of course he didn't know that the father was the owner of a large movie.

"We started back a day early so we'd have a little chance to rest up before coming back to camp. We stayed at the Red Cross in the town close to camp when we got back and had dates with our local English belles. We saw them again the next afternoon and had tea together, then came on out to camp. All in all, we really enjoyed our six days. It would have been lots nicer to have spent them at home but there's no use thinking about that."

"The lady who ran the place was really swell to us. She had made a collection of pins or brooches with bull dogs on them and when we left she gave each of us one of her pins. She said she wanted to give us a souvenir to remember her by.

"It looks about like you'd picture a castle—it has a lot of old rooms with the old furniture still in place, a museum full of old guns, armor and swords and lances carried by the knights of olden times. In the shrine are a lot of memorials to soldiers of different nations in the last war.

"There's a large natural park right at the edge of the city that they take great pride in. There are three or four large hills (they call them mountains) in it that are really beautiful. There is one in particular where the girls go to wash their faces on May 1. It is supposed to make them beautiful the rest of their lives.

The paper for the afternoon was given by Mrs. A. J. Darbyshire, and was well written and very interesting. She used as her subject, "India," and told of its location, size, population and religion.

Others on the program were Mrs. DeWitt Foster, who read "The Arlington Cemetery"; Mrs. Len Rhonemus, "American Flag"; Mrs. J. C. Williams, "Our Country's Greatest Glory." Current topics were varied and interesting.

DEBT REPORT OF CITY, COUNTY BEING MADE NOW

Delay Caused by Tardy Arrival Of Forms for Indebtedness

County, city auditors and township clerks today are working on long forms figuring out indebtedness for 1943. Scheduled to arrive January 5, the forms did not come here until Monday, Deputy Auditor Morris Baker said. He added he expected the reports would be finished in two weeks.

Reports from the office of State Auditor Joseph R. Ferguson show Ohio's political subdivisions had reduced their debts by more than $366,000,000 since the start of the depression in 1930 to the end of 1942.

This debt cutting gave the subdivisions almost $15,000,000 more to spend in 1942 for general operating purposes or to effect savings, calculating the amount saved in interest charges at the average rate of 4 percent.

The total debt of all subdivisions, county, municipal and school districts in 1930 was $976,961,771. In 1942 it had been cut to $610,768,027.

Counties probably made the greatest percentage reduction in the debts for the 12-year period. Starting in 1930 with debts of $170,320,265 the total had been cut to $52,376,002 at the end of 1942. Eight counties, including Gallia, and Highland, were without debt in 1942. Three—Champaign, Fairfield and Fayette—had none in 1930.

The 115 cities reduced their debts by more than $105,000,000 in the 12 year period, from $482,553,036 to $377,177,326.

All school district debts were slashed from $238,600,636 to $126,996,428.

Of the eight largest cities only Youngstown showed a debt increase during the 12 years, from $7,748,892 to $8,710,380. Cleveland just did get in under the reduction wire by whittling its debts from $127,359,558 to $127,289,752.

Reductions of other large municipalities included: Canton from $10,901,771 to $3,821,930.

TWINS ARE REUNITED BY ORDER OF FDR

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Identical twins, separated by the Army since December, 1942, are together again, but it took an order from President Roosevelt to accomplish it.

The twins, Pvt. Thomas and Jay Mulbarger, 20, of Columbus, Ohio, parted when Jay joined the air forces and was sent to Jefferson Barracks. Thomas was in-

As first Feature, a clever and timely story interspersed with gay music and performed by a lively cast are the popular elements combined in Universal's "Swingtime Johnny," coming Sunday to the State Theater. The famous Andrews Sisters are starred in the new comedy-musical which features Harriet Hilliard, Peter Cookson, Tim Ryan, Matt Willis, Bill Phillips and Mitch Ayres and his orchestra supply additional rhythm and entertainment.

"Swingtime Johnny" is described as being a clever cocktail of romantic happenings, lilting melodies and rib-tickling situations. Plenty of laughter is promised spontaneously throughout the picture.

Also on same program, Lon Chaney, the screen's master character actor, broke off a bond-selling tour to play the starring role in "Calling Dr. Death," initial mystery drama of Universal's scheduled series based upon the fabulous Inner Sanctum stories, coming Sunday to the State theater.

During his flying trip, Chaney's War Bond troupe appeared in 13 cities in ten days, and sold a total of $50,911,730 worth of bonds.

An exciting episode occurred in one large eastern city, after a stirring appeal had made little impression on an assembled crowd. Chaney became incensed at their lassitude, and threw away his prepared speech.

ducted and sent to Camp Croft, S. C.

Then their mother wrote her congressman to ask that the boys, who have done everything together from the cradle on up, be allowed to go through Army life together. The presidential order followed and the twins were reunited at Jefferson Barracks.

Innovation Is Introduced on Delaware Branch

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has placed in operation a two-way electronic train telephone system, permitting continuous verbal communication with moving trains, between trains and between the front and rear of trains.

The initial installation has been made on the 67-mile Belvidere-Delaware branch, running northward from Trenton, N. J. Officials stated that, while not yet adapted to general use, the new means of communication has now definitely demonstrated its capability of adding materially to the efficiency of controlling train movements. It has been produced in collaboration with the Union Switch and Signal Company, following several years of intensive experimentation and development, which are still continuing.

This unique system, the only one of its kind so far established, has been applied to the freight service on the branch, which is of substantial volume. It permits the crews of freight trains and block operators in wayside towers to talk to one another at any time for the transmission of orders, reports and information on matters affecting train operation. The conductor in the cabin car and the engineer in the locomotive cab may also talk to each other at will, and the crew of one train may communicate with the crew of another several miles distant. The equipment required for the new communication system has been installed on 10 locomotives and 10 cabin cars, and in a block station at Frenchtown, N. J., 30 miles north of Trenton. Installation is also under way at another block station in Trenton, where the branch leaves the New York-Washington main line.

WORK BEGINS ON HIGHWAY BARN EXTENSION HERE

County Engineer Willis Says
$10,000 Project Should Be Finished in 30 Days

Work on the new extension of the present county highway barn began Wednesday with the arrival of the official War Production Board go-ahead sign.

County Engineer Robert Willis said the cost of construction of the extension and the equipment sheds would not exceed $10,000—a figure including material and labor expenses. Workmen are already laying foundations for the sheds, at the back of the Mulberry Street-Lakeview Avenue lot. Building materials for the sheds will come from the present frame and corrugated iron structure which is being razed.

The old building, Willis said, is no longer suitable for the purpose it should fill, and, since the wood and iron in it are in good condition, they are to be used for the walls and roof of the string of equipment sheds 28 by 103 feet. Graders, rollers and other road equipment will be stored in the sheds, to be built on the lot where crushed stone, road oil and building materials are kept.

The new concrete block addition to the highway barn proper will be 34 by 70 feet and will face Lakeview Avenue. Willis said he hoped the project will be finished in 30 days. A. L. Rhoades Construction Company is supervising the work, although regular road crews are used for the labor. This season, Willis explained, is slow as far as regular road construction is concerned. That factor was one reason why this time of year was chosen to build the new barn.

After completion, the extension will house maintenance equipment, repair headquarters and county trucks.

GIRL REPORTER PASSES OUT WHILE TRAINING WITH ARMY FLIERS

effects of anoxia or oxygen want. We don't often see such beautiful convulsions.

When the air pressure in that big iron tank, which looked like a deluxe steam boiler with windows and electric lights, was restored to a mere 8,000 feet, we took off our headgear. Then I found out what he meant.

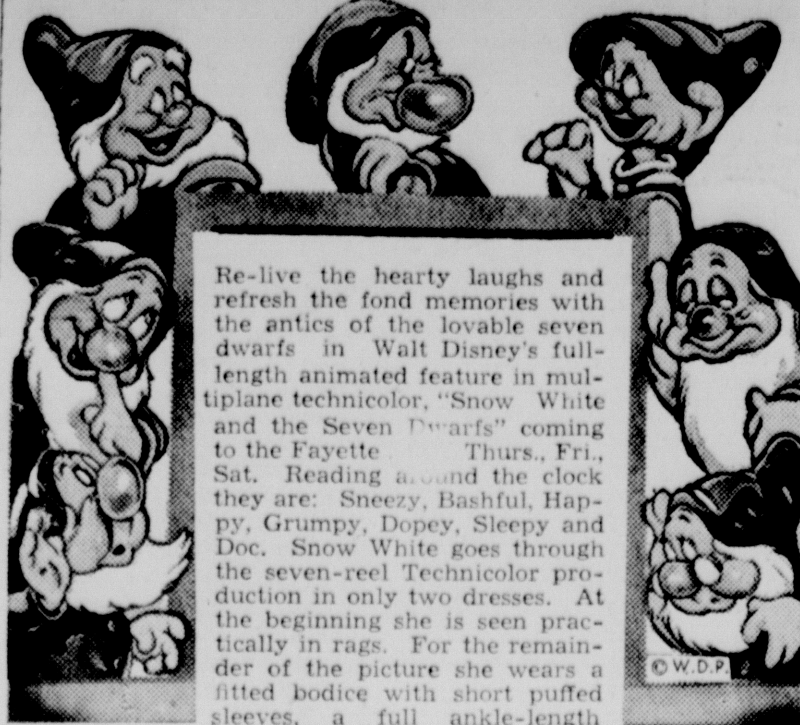

"What were you monkeying with my oxygen mask for?" I demanded of the lieutenant.

"You passed out, you dope," he grinned. "Your supply hose was clipped so low on your coat that you jerked the connection to your mask loose."

Then I discovered the reason I am alive to write about it when he explained, "I hooked up your oxygen hose, which was dangling on very, very thin air, and turned on the emergency valve of your oxygen regulator. You soon sat up as good as ever."

In less than a minute we'd taken a "free fall" of 18,000 feet. Maggie made it from Mars to consciousness without knowing she'd gone out like a bug in an airless jug. Earaches grabbed at the pilots with me, but I felt no pain. My fear vanished. I was "anoxiated"—slaphappy from lack of oxygen. I mumbled "aw shut up" into my mask as the instructor continued to tell us about anoxia as a result of my anoxic spree.

He said anoxic people never believe they've passed out, rarely

Re-live the hearty laughs and refresh the fond memories with the antics of the lovable seven dwarfs in Walt Disney's full-length animated feature in multiplane technicolor, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" coming to the Fayetteville, Thurs., Fri., Sat. Reading around the clock they are: Sneezy, Bashful, Happy, Grumpy, Dopey, Sleepy and Doc. Snow White goes through the seven-reel Technicolor production in only two dresses. At the beginning she is seen practically in rags. For the remainder of the picture she wears a fitted bodice with short puffed sleeves, a full ankle-length skirt, and a cape.

remember symptoms. Trembling hands were all I recalled. For hours I saw a rosy world. As Strato Sal I just wanted to sleep. Fliers sometimes get this "pleasantly tight" feeling from chronic anoxia.

Warnings from the captain who'd given us our indoctrination lecture on correct behavior in the stratosphere flitted through my mind:

"As you climb to altitude over 10,000 feet the atmospheric pressure decreases to a point where your lungs don't deliver enough oxygen to your blood to keep you alert and active."

"Above 20,000 feet you will become unconscious in a short time without additional oxygen, and by the time you get to 33,500 feet you must breathe 100 percent oxygen to stay conscious."

"At 40,000 feet you will lose your sense in 15 seconds without an oxygen mask. A man can live for weeks without food, for days without water, but only six to eight minutes without oxygen."

He had also demonstrated how to connect the oxygen mask to the supply hose, how to clip the hose to our coats and of course how to fit them so they would not leak.

After it was all over, I shuddered at my carelessness.

But anoxia wasn't the only thing I learned the hard way.

The first thing they did at the laboratory when I said I wanted to make a high-altitude flight was to bury me in an enormous sheepskin flying suit, fit me with a helmet and oxygen mask and put me in a cold chamber which looked enough like a monster to scare me.

This chamber, which costs $52,175, not only simulates atmospheric pressures up to 70,000 feet altitude but temperatures down to 70 below zero. Flying Fortresses go in normal temperatures from 40 to 60 below over Berlin.

I entered the cold chamber—they said I was the first reporter ever to do so—with three WASPs being indoctrinated for the super-woman-size job of ferrying B-17 bombers.

I was quite comfortable with the temperature down to 45 below and icy fog of our breath filling the chamber, but when we got to 38,000 feet the biggest pain I ever had struck my middle.

I knew what it was—the instructor had described how intestinal gas expands at 40,000 feet to seven times the volume at sea level. Usually it passes away, he said, but if it doesn't it means a "crippling pain in the belly."

You can say that again, Captain. I tried to "sweat it out," but a WASP noticed my discomfort and called the captain. He led me out through the chamber lock with a "walk-around bottle," which is a portable oxygen unit to be attached to your mask for use when you move from your regular station.

After they'd gone on up to 43,000 feet without me and come back down, they wanted to know if I'd gone on a "standard chamber run" (at normal temperature).

"Yes," I said, "because if I don't go now I'll never go again."

That was the time I got "anoxi-

Although gas pain and anoxia are commonplaces to them, they agreed it was "pretty rough" for a girl reporter and said I'd earned my high flight certificate which shows that I am qualified for real flights above 30,000 feet. They even sent my boss a two-page report, scientific and impressive, but strangely human-sounding for the Army, because it closed with "Miss Kernodle was a competent and interested student and it was a pleasure to have her in the laboratory."

Well, I'm glad I did it, but I don't want to do it again.

After it was all over, I shuddered at my carelessness. But anoxia wasn't the only thing I learned the hard way.

The first thing they did at the laboratory when I said I wanted to make a high-altitude flight was to bury me in an enormous sheepskin flying suit, fit me with a helmet and oxygen mask and put me in a cold chamber which looked enough like a monster to scare me.

This chamber, which costs $52,175, not only simulates atmospheric pressures up to 70,000 feet altitude but temperatures down to 70 below zero. Flying Fortresses go in normal temperatures from 40 to 60 below over Berlin.

I entered the cold chamber—they said I was the first reporter ever to do so—with three WASPs being indoctrinated for the super-woman-size job of ferrying B-17 bombers.

I was quite comfortable with the temperature down to 45 below and icy fog of our breath filling the chamber, but when we got to 38,000 feet the biggest pain I ever had struck my middle.

I knew what it was—the instructor had described how intestinal gas expands at 40,000 feet

to seven times the volume at sea level. Usually it passes away, he said, but if it doesn't it means a "crippling pain in the belly."

You can say that again, Captain. I tried to "sweat it out," but a WASP noticed my discomfort and called the captain. He led me out through the chamber lock with a "walk-around bottle," which is a portable oxygen unit to be attached to your mask for use when you move from your regular station.

After they'd gone on up to 43,000 feet without me and come back down, they wanted to know if I'd gone on a "standard chamber run" (at normal temperature).

"Yes," I said, "because if I don't go now I'll never go again."

That was the time I got "anoxi-

tax bill was inadequate for wartime needs.

Barkley, declaring the President was guilty of misstatements and of making a "deliberate and calculated assault upon the honesty and integrity" of Congress, said:

"Other members may do as they please. I do not propose to take this unjustifiable assault lying down."

He urged Congress to override the veto.

In a telegram to Barkley, President Roosevelt said he regretted that "you thought I had, in my message, attacked the integrity of yourself and other members of the Congress."

"Such, you must know, was not my intention."

Barkley's oration immediately focused attention on him as a possible rallying center for dissident elements of the party, although some leaders thought it would tend to solidify the party by "clearing the atmosphere."

Charles H. McGhee, former Massachusetts Democratic committee chairman, predicted a "Favorite Son" candidacy for the Presidential nomination may get under way in Kentucky in Barkley's behalf.

For himself, Barkley told reporters he was "utterly indifferent as to what the political consequences may be to me."

Whatever the long-range implications, it was freely predicted Barkley would be retained as Senate leader, with vastly enhanced prestige.

Although the ruddy-faced veteran told reporters, "I don't want to be re-elected" leader, he did not close the door to the draft that appeared certain.

"I'll cross that bridge when I get to it," he said.

Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance committee, forecast flatly Barkley would be asked unanimously to stay at the helm, adding he was confident if the House overrides the tax bill veto, the Senate will do likewise.

In the historic address, which he said he made only after long deliberation, Barkley shouted, "This is the first time . . . I have been accused deliberately of voting for a bill that constituted a relief measure impoverishing the needy and enriching the greedy."

His break with Mr. Roosevelt was more noteworthy because of the close relations that existed between them for years. Barkley followed White Policies unswervingly.

Then Threw It to Dog

One lady recently stated that she used to throw her own dinner to the dog most of the time. It made her sick just to look at anything to eat. She was swollen with gas, full of bloat, had headaches, felt worn out and was badly constipated. Finally she got ERB-HELP and says she now eats everything in sight and digests it perfectly. Bowels are regular and normal. She is enjoying life once more and feels like "some other woman" since taking this New Compound.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP! Finley's Drug Store.

LOCAL MAN AT DEDICATION OF NEW AIRDROME

Six Big Airfields Built in England Turned Over For Use

Corporal Charles F. Goolsby, 520 South North Street, this city, and Sergeant Gerald B. Nance, Mt. Sterling, were present recently and took part in the brief ceremonies when six huge new airdromes, built in England, were formally turned over to the American Air Force for use.

Regarding the airports and the brief ceremonies, the following, from Headquarters European Theater of Operations, United States Army, gives the story:

"United States Army aviation engineers in England stepped into the limelight recently when they handed over to the American Air Force six newly-built airdromes in one day.

"Four of the fields from which American flyers will leap to Europe are heavy bomber bases. The other two are advance repair depots, one for fighters and the other for bombers.

"The engineers estimated the total cost of the six 'spring-boards' to be $40,000,000. They cover an area of more than 25 square miles of English countryside.

"Separate, brief ceremonies were held at each field at the time they were turned over. At one of the airdromes engineer troops and the highly mechanized equipment they are using to build airdromes passed in review before Lieutenant General Jacob L. Devers, former commanding officer of the United States Forces in the European Theater of Operations.

"Others on the reviewing stands were Brigadier General C. R. Moore, Chief Engineer in the European Theater of Operations, and Philip Reed, Lend-Lease administrator in England.

"Among those who took part in the brief ceremonies at which the fields were turned over to the American Air Force were the following engineers:

(Then follows the names of about two dozen engineers from various parts of the United States, including Goolsby and Nance.)

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there's something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

-Spying- On Sports By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP)—All that Gil Dodds needs to go to break the indoor mile record Saturday is to run six inches nearer the inside rim of the track and maintain his usual speed. . . expert observers, noting that Gil usually runs 18 inches from the border, figure that he travels eleven yards more than the mile, which is measured a foot from the rim. . . Glenn Cunningham used to run inside that line. . . Puerto Rican boxers, who won two New York Golden Gloves titles last year, are coming up again with a team that includes five southpaws—and they expect to win four titles. . . Don Hutson, who has built himself up to 194 pounds since the end of the pro football season, turns aside all jibes with the crack: "I'm training to be a coach."

Iron Man The Cincinnati Reds are pretty proud of the endurance feat of Ray Mueller in catching 140 games last season, but Ray has a long way to go before he can equal Wilbert Robinson. . . Back in 1896, Robbie caught all three games of a triple header for the Baltimore Orioles then came back next day to work through a doubleheader. . . One Minute Sports Page Herman Wedemeyer, the Hawaiian sensation of west coast football last fall, recently tried skiing and wound up with a compound ankle fracture. . . The Lucknow, Ont., Maple Leafs have an all-Chinese hockey line composed of Bill Albert and George Chin. Their father (honestly) is named Charlie Chin and there are 14 kids in the family. . . If any of 'em are twins, we assume they'd be double chins. . . Today's Guest Star Carter (Scott) Latimer, Greenville, S. C., News: "We used to say the Cardinals had three teams—one coming, one going and one playing. But now it's one coming for the draft, one going into the army and one fighting."

Service Dept. When the Keesler Field, Miss., Officers' Basketball team plays the enlisted men's quintet, Lieut. Lee Sondecker of Portland, Ore., does considerable bench polishing. Sondecker is regular guard for the officers and coach of the enlisted men, who have won all three classes under Lee's direction. . . In a letter to Elmer Layden, Capt. Joe Reedy, the old Notre Dame tackle who has been on 36 bombing missions out of England, enclosed a note from Capt. Olav Ullesfoss of Voss, Norway, who said that back home they tell him his residence is next door to the house in which Knute Rockne was born.

HONUS WAGNER IS ALL SET FOR ANOTHER YEAR

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Honus Wagner, oldest active man in a major league baseball uniform, observes his 70th birthday today—but with only 33 candles on his cake. . . "This is my 33rd year in National League uniform," smiles the bandy-legged "Flying Dutchman" of baseball's rough-and-ready era. "Besides I don't feel 70 anyway. I feel more like 33." . . The league's former hitting and base-running champ, starting his 12th year as a coach for the Pittsburgh Pirates, appends that "I always wear No. 33 on my uniform. Anyway I have most of the time since the numbers on uniforms got that high." . . Honus doesn't look—or act—his age. Septuagenarian or no, he says he'll be out on the field as usual this season during pre-game drills, passing on his wealth of baseball lore to rookies and veterans and showing them, with his 70-year-old arm, exactly how to field that ball. . . J. P. Blanchard, a Frenchman, guided his balloon across the English Channel on January 7, 1785, in the first cross-Channel flight.

Fast Games Mark First Round County Basketball Tourney

A roaring, near-capacity crowd of nearly 700, one of the largest first night attendances, saw dopesters' predictions come true when Jeffersonville and Madison Mills battled to places in the semi-finals of the county cage tourney in the high school gym here Wednesday night. The quintets met Thursday to fight it out for a place in the Saturday finals. Wayne dropped the first field goal when they met Jeff for the

Eagles Play Mt, Sterling For City Cage Loop Title

Those high-flying Eagle basketballers and that sharpshooting bunch of cagers from Mt. Sterling will meet on the Armory floor next Tuesday night to battle it out for the championship of the City Independent League as the result of the first two rounds of the loop's double-elimination

Bowling Lead Is Stretched By Gremlins

The Gremlins inched away from their closest rivals, the Aero-nauts, in the API Women's League bowling on the Main Street alleys Wednesday night by winning the last two games after taking a sound beating in the opener. The third place Spitfires were handed a tow-to-one setback by the P-38s, and were pushed down to where the B-19s could catch them in a couple of weeks unless they step on the gas. The 9-38s won the first two games from the Spitfires and then dropped the last one by a nine-pin margin. The B-19s, meanwhile were taking two out of three from the trailing Gliders to close a bit of the gap separating them from the place.

first game in the double-elimination varsity tourney. For a while, it looked as if the bottom-rung Mad Anthony's might turn up with a surprise win, but the Jeffersonville steam roller went into action and swept through to a 38-20 victory. Jeff's Vannorsdall and Agie, with 15 and 10 points respectively, alone were enough to whip the Good Hope five. The Bloomingburg-Madison Mills contest was a fast one with lightning action nearly every minute of play. Not a lopsided contest, although the Millers wound up with a 38-24 win, both sets of cagers played a hard game all the way, and it wasn't until near the end of the second quarter that the Millers had a substantial lead. The Millers were swamped in the junior high contest—trounced to the tune of 45-3 by a vastly taller Bloomingburg cage threat. One field goal and one foul shot was all the midjet Millers could throw over the Burgers' towering defense wall. Robinson, Cornell and Brown carried the heaviest scoring load for the winning squad, while Hays and Vincent put the three points up for the Millers. The Wayne Juniors kept up with the Jeff five in a nip and tuck first half in their contest, but bowed before a stronger team to lose 13-5. Evans, Jeff center, rang up five points for the largest individual scoring in the game. Elimination games in the reserve tourney are scheduled Thursday night as well as two varsity games—the play-off between Jeff and the Millers and a contest between the two losers in the Wednesday games, Wayne and Bloomingburg.

GOOD BID GOOD BET IN RACING

By BERT COLLIER

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24.—(P)—H. E. Jacoby, a Chicago business executive, thinks he made a sound investment when he acquired a racing stable last year and became the owner of the three-year-old chestnut colt, Good Bid. Under Jacoby's brand-new colors, the flying son of Psychic Bid has never finished worse than second in four outings at Hialeah Park. In his last eight races he has been in the money six times and is installed as one of the favorites for the $15,000 Flamingo Saturday.

Don't overlook him in that mile and an eighth test of possible Kentucky Derby contenders, counsels Jacoby, even though he was beaten two lengths by Director J. R. last Saturday in the stagehand. "We kept him on the outside in that race, which we considered a prep for the Flamingo," Jacoby explained. "He had a chance to go over to the rail but jockey Steve Brooks had instructions to stay out where the footing was better. We won't overlook that chance in the big race." Jacoby will take the colt to Churchill Downs at the end of the Hialeah season, and then to the Chicago tracks. "I think we will hear from him this summer," he declared.

at Eniwetok, 330 miles west of Kwajalein. The Japanese had estimated 300 troops on the entire atoll, but Pacific fleet headquarters reported only 28 or more Japanese taken prisoner. American casualties are believed low.

American planes bombed Ponape and Kusai in the Carolines and unidentified atolls in the Marshalls. Another attack was aimed at Nauru Island, west of the U. S. held Gilberts. Not a plane was lost.

Marines from the north coast of New Britain effected a juncture with Sixth Army troops from Arawe on the south to gain full control of the western portion of the 800-mile long Island with the battered enemy fortress of Rabaul at the northeastern tip.

General MacArthur estimated approximately 7000 Japanese troops had been killed in the fighting following American invasion of Cape Gloucester December 26 and Arawe, December 15.

Solomon-based planes plastered Rabaul's Lakunai and Rapopo airdromes with 120 tons on Monday, and for the second successive day met no interception. Two enemy freighter-transports and an escort vessel were sunk by aerial bombs off Cape Matanale near Nubia on the northeastern New Guinea coast.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Grains advanced today on buying which came mainly from local traders, some of which was attributed to covering by previous short-sellers. The market opened lower, rye dropping about a cent, and then reversed itself after the first half-hour. From that time onward, the trend was upward. Buying expanded after the House overrode the President's veto of the wheat bill. City Manager Says Sewers In Alarming Condition

DECLARES MANY ROOT - CLOGGED AND INADEQUATE

Plans Immediate Start To Prevent Break Down In Service

The sewer system of Washington C. H. is in an "alarming condition" and unless steps are taken immediately to bring temporary relief property owners in much of the city may expect a great deal of trouble, City Manager Walter L. Stambaugh told Council Wednesday night.

Council authorized the city manager to take steps at once looking toward the purchase of a root cutter and equipment, so that work in bringing relief might be started as soon as possible in order to prevent a serious breakdown in some of the leading sewers.

Stambaugh said an investigation made during the past few weeks and particularly during the recent heavy rainfall, disclosed that some of the sewers were totally inadequate to handle storm water and some of them apparently were virtually filled with roots of trees. Many complaints of water backing into basements were received, he added.

This condition will rapidly grow worse unless steps are taken with root cutters and in other ways to bring relief for the time being, he said.

He explained that some of the main sewers in the city are constructed of ordinary drain tile which are easily penetrated at the joints by small tree roots which soon fill the interior of the drains.

He expressed the opinion that many of the sewers should be taken up and relaid with much larger regulation sewer tile.

Stambaugh said that a root cutter which could be used in bringing relief in main sewers and even private sewers, could be purchased for around $400 and that in addition a gasoline engine to furnish power would be necessary.

The city should obtain another dumping ground instead of the one now used, due to complaints of farm owners down stream that tin cans and other refuse from the dump, which is situated on the McLean land along the north bank of Paint Creek between Sycamore and Elm Streets, he declared.

Paul A. Uhlman, consulting engineer, now in charge of the sewage disposal plant here and who makes frequent inspection visits to the plant, spoke at some length.

He said the city should have a root cutter to keep sewers clean, as part of the city's standard equipment.

Regarding the disposal plant and the new operator, James Finney, Uhlman said the plant had been in bad shape before Finney started working on it last year, and that he was rapidly bringing it up to its highest functioning point and that Finney understood the mechanism, was a good mechanic and enthusiastic about his work.

He said the gas engine which is operated from sludge gas, will soon be in operation once more and will greatly reduce the operating costs. The gas engine to furnish power to pump the sewage is the first one used in Ohio, Uhlman said.

He urged the city to combine garbage and sewage disposal, by purchasing a grinder so that the garbage may be ground up and placed in the digester tanks, thus increasing the gas for power for operating the pumps and the grinder.

Inspection of the plant during the recent heavy rains disclosed that the pumps were being worked overtime by an excess of storm water which is reaching the intercepting sewers and passing through the plant, greatly increasing pumping costs and wear on the plant, he indicated.

He said efforts are to be made to locate the trouble and eliminate as much of the storm water as possible.

A garbage grinder suitable for handling the garbage in this city cost around $2,000 before the war, he said.

The engineer also said that in some cities where he is consulting engineer, private sewers are clogged with roots as well as some of the city sewers, and that such was probably the case in this city.

A petition signed by seven street employees, asking that their wages be increased from 50 cents per hour to 65 cents an hour for regular time, and time and a half, or 97 cents per hour for all overtime was presented.

The matter was referred to City Manager Stambaugh, for consideration and report at the next meeting, when it is also planned to take up requests of city police and firemen for further increases in salaries.

Stambaugh said complaints had also been made during the mild weather, about keeping bees in the city, and that one man said his small daughter had been stung by bees kept by a neighbor.

City Solicitor Charles S. Hire was delegated to investigate and report whether an ordinance should be passed to regulate the matter of keeping bees within the city limits.

The city manager also told council that Garrett Ramey, Try-Me-Taxi Cab owner, was having great difficulty obtaining drivers and wanted to employ police during spare hours to drive taxis. Approval of the city manager had been asked, he said.

Council asked the city manager to give a ruling on the proposal and that the police await further word before accepting such employment.

RAINFALL HERE IS 1.78 INCH

Heaviest Precipitation in Many Months

The two days' rainfall early this week proved to be the heaviest in months, with a total of 1.78 inches recorded for the two days, bringing to well over two inches the amount of rain and snow that have fallen in the past 10 days.

As a result of the 1.78 inches of rain in two days, streams of the county have been thoroughly flushed and the surface water greatly increased.

While the rains have ended plowing for a few days, it was just what the soil was needing to insure growth of the wheat and grass.

Indications are that precipitation for February will be normal or above, and it will be the first in many months that a normal rainfall has been recorded.

Following the rain which ended Tuesday night, the mercury remained fairly high, reaching a peak of 56 during Wednesday afternoon and dropping to 36 during the night. A year ago, 65 and 32 were the readings.
